

RESCUE WORK IN MINE CONTINUED ALL DURING NIGHT

Eighty-Three Bodies Recovered From Disaster Early This Morning.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—Officials of the Woodward Iron Co., owners of Dolomite mine No. 3, where a dust explosion trapped 75 miners yesterday afternoon, announced early today that eighty-three bodies had been taken from the mine and that they feared the total toll of dead might reach 100. Rescue work continued.

Approximately sixty men were reported to have been injured by the blast and the other men to have escaped unharmed.

Scenes of pathos about the mine mouth during the night and early morning hours continued as relatives and families of miners known to have been in the mine when the blast occurred, waited expectantly for news of their loved ones.

Many of these men, it was believed, had reached the surface in safety through the run way connecting the mine with mine No. 2 and had re-entered the workings to help in rescue work without communicating with company officials or relatives.

The anxious relatives, however, kept their watch about the mine mouth all night long, refusing to quit their post until they learned definitely of husbands, fathers, brothers or loved ones.

It probably will be late tonight before a complete account will be available according to company officials, who remained at the mine all night in an effort to relieve the minds of anxious relatives.

Many of the seriously injured may succumb, it was said at the hospital in Bessemer, where they were taken after they were brought from the mine last night.

It was after midnight before the state militia at the scene of the disaster was able to clear the district about the mine entrance of hundreds of curious who came to watch the rescue work.

Shortly before midnight, the work of identification of dead was halted, authorities and officials turning all of their attention to caring for the injured.

The jam of automobiles about the mine during the late hours last night caused several collisions, no one being badly injured, but property damage was heavy. The arrival of state troops finally relieved this traffic jam.

The force of the explosion was felt in Birmingham, nine miles distant, the concussion being distinctly heard in the south highlands residence district.

Throughout the night, joyous reunions occasionally relieved the sorrowful scenes. One small girl gave a cry of delight as his face emerged, his face smoke-blackened and his clothing bearing mute signs of his struggle to reach the surface in safety.

As the man came out the little girl threw herself into his arms and the pair hurried off before his name could be learned. An aged woman collapsed as she greeted two sons after several hours of anxious waiting at the entrance, fearing that both had lost their lives. The boys, meeting rescuers in the mine as they were making their way out and learning that the victims again were safe from poisonous gases, turned back to aid in the search for other men.

Stories of heroism common in coal mine districts, began to trickle to the outside early today as begrimed rescuers came to the surface after long hours of work in the mine.

One rescuer told of an unidentified mine foreman who assembled about his thirty workers soon after the blast occurred, ordered all to remain with him and work on fixing up brattices with stones and canvas to shut off the dreaded after-damp. While this work was going on, one miner objected to remaining and began to fight his way outward. The rest remained and completed the brattice. When the fans started up again, and the air cleared, the foreman led his men out only to stumble over the body of the man who refused to stick a few feet away from the temporary brattices. Tales of miners who hurriedly built walls across niches and hollows in the workings, stopping the clinks with parts of their own clothing and thus saving their lives from the gases were numerous as rescue squads reached the surface.

Fourteen men were working within the mine about one mile from the entrance when the explosion occurred. All felt the force of the blast, entered a pocket in the wall of the mines and were rescued uninjured last night.

FINAL REPORT ON HOSPITAL TAG DAY MADE THIS WEEK

Donations of Home-Made Preserves and Jellies Expected to Be Big Aid.

Final report was made by Mrs. W. R. Johnson, chairman of the Woman's Hospital Association, to the association board this week of the results of the Cook Hospital Tag Day held some weeks ago in the city and surrounding community.

The results of the tag day appeal it was reported were most satisfactory considering the miserable weather conditions which prevailed at that time. The sum of $1,533 was given by the public to the women to supply Cook Hospital with linen for one year, and to help install a new dumb waiter in the institution.

At the board meeting it was decided to give the dumb waiter fund $710 of the amount received. It will take $2000 to install the electric dumb waiter, which must supply the three floors filled with sick persons. Experts in electrical installation declare that the sum named is the smallest possible estimate on the kind of a job desired at the hospital, but with this start the board thinks the Cook Hospital board of management can arrange for the remainder. After devoting $710 to the dumb waiter fund there remained $823 for hospital linen. The women had already purchased linen to the amount of $117 worth, making $1006 for the Cook Hospital linen fund. It is estimated that it will take $1200 to keep up the hospital linen supply for one year, but the Woman's Hospital Association expects to be able to contribute the remaining $200 when the need arises at the close of the year.

The charity accounts committee, Baltimore where Mrs. Senella will enter the Johns Hopkins Hospital as a surgical patient.

Mrs. Clyde Chenoweth, who had been visiting in Gratton for the past week, returned to her home here yesterday.
